Personalized guidance and support

Presentation

Globalization, technological changes and the irruption of emerging powers are reconfiguring world politics and rapidly transforming our societies. This specialization is designed to give participants a clear understanding of the challenges of global governance.

The aim of the specialization is twofold. First, it equips students with tools to carry out an advanced analysis of the complexities of global governance, focusing on various issues of growing importance on the international political agenda, such as climate change. Second, it teaches them about the multilevel decision-making mechanisms affecting global governance.

The specialization offers insight into the main challenges currently facing global governance, considering both the economic and political aspects of these new challenges.

The contents have been designed to further the skills of active professionals interested in these topics and whose work is somehow related to global governance.
